The Printing of a Little Extra Evidence in Kellogg Case Leads to a Debate Among the Hoary-Headed Ambassaders of the States—The Day's Work.

THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Mr. Cameron, of Wisconsin, rose to what he deemed to amount to a question of privilege. He stated that he was surprised to see that the testimony of E. S. He had not thought it necessary, personally, to supervise the printing.

Mr. Morrill asked Mr. Saulsbury if he had any objection to having Webber's testimony actually stricken out.

Mr. Saulsbury had none, except that it would make it necessary for the reprinting of the whole edition of the report.

Mr. Ingalls thought the incorrect reports should be withdrawn and a correct edition printed. The volumes went into the public libraries all over the country, and the senate should not stick at the expense of a few thousand dollars to correct an error prejudicial to one of the parties to the case.

Charles Chapman, one of the executive clerks, has been dismissed for undue familiarity with young girls who went to the executive mansion in quest of government appointments. It is alleged that, by pretending he could influence appointments, he ruined several of the female seekers for place. When his conduct be came known to President Hayes the latter promptly discharged Chapman. The immediate cause of his removal involved a member of congress from Ohio, who, it seems, was a sort of partner of Chapman in the disreputable business.

The Woodsiders announced they would hold theirs in the church. The opposition, to avoid trouble, called theirs in the house of the trouble, called theirs in the house of the janitor. When the latter arrived there they found the Woodsiders in possession. The anti-Woodsiders asserted their rights and insisted upon their election. The scene that ensued baffles description. Tables and chairs were dragged about, both forces at the same time protesting with all the visor and webspences they could comthe vigor and, vehemence they could com-rand. Finally, with the aid of the police, order was restored, the anti-Woodsiders withdrawing to the office of their lawyers, withdrawing to the office of their lawyers, where voting was carried on without further molestation. A reporter of THE CONSTITUTION called on Mr. Newcomb, at the Kimball, shortly after his arrival and asked him if there was any-thing that he could say to the public on the subject of the Georgia Western road. Mr. Newcomb replied:

"I have always dealt with the people of Atlanta with perfect frankness on this subject, and have not now, and never had, any thing to withhold from them." "Are you going to build the Georgia Western road?" "That's a very plump question and demands a fair answer. I will say frankly that I did not intend a short time ago to build the road within the immediate future. Indeed, I had put it to one side for the time being, as a project not demanded by the nterests of my company. But complicaions arose about a month ago that forced me to the conclusion that the road should be built. I admitted this fact to myselr reluctantly, and only after my directors and officials had almost without exception urged its necessity upon me. Once having determined upon it, however, I went to work in earnest, and very soon completed my arrangements for the building of the oad. I have seen nothing to change my opinion that the road is a necessity to us, and the work is progessing with all possible rapidity."

"Are Messrs. Wilson and McGhee inter-sted with you in building the road?"
"You must excuse me from answering "You must excuse me from answering that question at present. It is enough to say that my arrangements are completed."
"You stated to Mr. Howell and myself in Louisville last Wednesday that you saw no chance for your system except the building of the road. Have you changed that opinion yet?"
"I have not. I do not see any possible way by which an arrangement can be reached of a permanent operation that will be satisfactory to my company. I have studied the matter of course very carefully, for I have wished to reach another conclu-

Charlotte Observer.

It has been an open secret in Charlotte for some weeks that efferts were being made to perfect arrangements between the representatives of the Virginia Midland railroad company, which is operated in the interest of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company by which the connecting link between Charlotte and Danville should be immediately built. With this object in view, and upon the layitation of Mr. John W. Garrett, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, and J. S. Tennessee and Ohio railroad company last week, visited Washington City for the purpose of a general conference. Upon the assurances of these gentlemen, representing as they did the interests of their respective companies, and Colonel Myers, representing the interests of the stockholders in his road, an agreement was entered into, subject to the ratification of the stockholders of the Atlantic, Tennessee and Ohio railroad, looking to a speedy completion of the proposed road between Charlotte and Danville. It is a part of the contract that President Garrett, at the proper time, will furnish all the money necessary to liquidate the judgment debt and all other floating obligations then due by the Atlantic, Tennessee and Ohio railroad company.

and all other floating obligations then due by the Atlantic, Tennessee and Ohio railroad company.

The debts now due by the Atlantic, Tennessee and Ohio railroad company are understood to amount to about $17.700. Of this sum $65,000 are what is known as the gold bonds, and $92,000 is a judgment (the Child's debt) now held by the sinking fund of the North Carolina railroad company.

The road is not in a condition to entertain any proposition, lease, sale or co-oporation with any other company after the manner contemplated until these debts are paid, and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, are making all their propositions in view of this father any part in the road of the interest of this enterprise. In these negotiations nothing was either done or said as to what point it experiences and the response of the experience of the several routes proposed have been given the "longest pole will knock down the persimmens."

A Review of the Manufacturing and Industrial Inter-sts of Atlanta—The Number of Em-ployes and Where They Are Em-ployed—A Good Sign, Etc.

As Atlanta grows, her manufacturing en-As Atlanta grows, her manufacturing en-terprises increase in number very rapidly. Rvery year brings with it the establishment of a score of useful industries in our midst. A few years since the manufacturing inter-ests of the city were scarcely worth men-tioning. Now she is being classed among the leading manufacturing cities of the south. If all of the enterprises of this char-acter were located in one quarter of the city acter were located in one quarter of the city a fine showing would be presented. Goods of all classes and to suit all kinds of trade are being manufactured in large quantities.

A good many of these enterprises have no sales can always be had for the goods made by them. These factories give employment to thousands of hands that without them would be unemployed. Experienced labor in all classes of work is omparatively easy to be had, except perhaps in the case of the Atlanta cotton fac-tory, which for some time past has been running short-handed. Recently, however, Mr. Kimball has succeeded in procuring more help and is now feeling quite hopeful of getting at an early day all of the hands that he needs. His factory is running on full time, having two sets of hands, one-half of them being on duty during the day and the other at night. Many of the merchants and storekeepers of the city employ scores of lady clerks, who make a profitable living behind the counter doing such work as are litted for them. We have carefully hunted up all of the enterprises of a manufacturing charac-ter in the city and give them below, show-ing the number of children, male adults and female adults employed in this way. Frequently a rush of trade compels the employment of an extra number of hands in these enterprises and some times it is found neces-say to double the force. We may have made some omissions, as enterprises of this character are springing up in the city daily and get under full headway before it becomes generally known that they exist. The following statement of the enterprises of this kind in the city, together with the number of hands employed in each, will be of interest to those who feel proud of Atlanta and her progressiveness:

The Constitution

ness the progress and culmination of the most interesting political contest that has ever taken place in this country—every citizen and every thoughtful person will be compelled to rely upon the newspapers for information. Why not get the best? Abroad THE CONSTITUTION is pecognized, referred to and quoted from as the leading southern journal—as the organ and vehicle of the best southern thought and opinion—and at home its columns are consulted for the latest news, the freshest comment, and for all matters of special and current interest. THE CONSTITUTION contains more and later telegraphic news than any other Georgia paper, and this particular feature will be largely added to during the coming year. All its facilities for gathering the latest news from all parts of the country will be enlarged and supplemented. THE CONSTITUTION is both chronicler and commentator. Its editorial opinions, its contributions to the drift of current discussion, its humorous and satirical paragraphs, are copied from one end of the country to the other. It aims always to be the brightest and the best—newsy, original and piquant. It aims particularly to give the news impartially and fully, and to keep its readers informed of the drift of current discussion by liberal but concise quotations from all its sion by liberal but concise quotations from all its contemporaries. It aims, in short, to more than ever deserve to be known as "the leading south-ern newspaper." Bill Arp will continue to contribute his unique letters, which grow in savory humor week by week. "Old Si" will add his aint fun to the collection of good things, and 'Uncle Remus' has in preparation a series of ne-ro myth legends, illustrating the folk-lore of the old plantation. This of course means two delegations to Cincinnati, and two sets of electors in opposition to the republican ticket unless affairs take a course that is pleasing to the obstreperous Tammany crowd. Circumstances have virtually placed the control of a great party in a very important respect in the hands of a lot of people in whom the country has no confidence, and it seems to be impossible to flank them.

Upon two or three occasions recently THE CONSTITUTION has endeavored to call attention to the necessity of adopting, so far as the democratic party of Georgia is concerned, a broad and liberal policy as one of the essentials of harmony among the democratic voters. We are perfectly well aware that the mere statement that such a policy is a necessity is open to the charge of vagneness, but at the same time we believe the mental acuteness of those upon whom will devolve the duty not only of formulating the policy of the party, but of carrying it out, may be reied upon to perceive precisely what modifications are necessary to promote and secure party unity in all sections of the state. One of the results of success is progression, and the democratic party in Georgia has progressed beyond that point (or that period) when its most destructive feature was opposition to republicanism. The republicanisms which at one time attempted to perpetuate its corruption in Georgia has been buried beneath a majority of eighty thousand votes. It is dead. It was slain by the indignation of the people, and it can never be revived as it existed during the reconstruction period; and if it is revived in any shape, or under any other name, it will never again represent an attack upon our social organism. In other words, as we en-of the democratic party in Georgia must hereafter represent something more than mere opposition to dead republicanism. A recognition of this fact on the part of those who lead the party-(and it is a fact that will ultimately compel recognition)-must inevitably modify the tone THE testimony in the Kellogg case and temper of democrats and tend to remakes a book of nearly one thousand new, among those who have the welfare pages; and the withdrawal of the entire of the state at heart, that harmony of edition in order to strike out parts of the action and unity of purpose which has restored good government in the commonwealth and given Georgia a most ement of the case to the short session. enviable position among the states of the It is thought that the republican senators | union. Conventions were denounced. and it was urged-and is now urgedthat the very methods instituted by the people themselves to secure organization had been seized upon by "tricksters" and what not, and the will of the people ignored. There was not even plausibility in the protest, but the tone and temper of the discussion which followed tended to create division. The press is one of the worders attending the growth of our institutious. In the history of the human more there is nothing comparable to this development. —Colonel D. H. Elliott, agent of the Florida dispatch line, hopped into THE CONSTITUTION office yesterday with a basket of home-made Florida oranges swinging to his baldric. These he dispensed, together with a few smiles, and then asked all hands to step down to Florida with him and shoot to step down to Florida with him and shoot alligators.

—Augusta News: Occasionally we are almost led to believe that Georgia contains the richest deposits of gold of any spot on the face of the earth. All around us, in the mountain districts, the precious metal is being picked up on the surface, in branches, on the hillsides and in fact, in the most out of the way places imaginable. Only last week, a young Mr. Long, of Gilmer county, while out working, stopped at a small branch to wash his hands. While doing so he scooped up some sand and gravel with the water, when he noticed a bright, yellow lump of something that attracted his attention. Putting it in his pocket, he continued his bath, and in doing so, picked up several other lumps of the yellow stuff he had first noticed and put in his pocket. After, going to his home, he exhibited his findings, which proved to be pure gold in lumps weighing from two to three grains each. This is not the first gold found at this place, and it had evidently drifted from a deposit further up the hill. Gilmer county, as most all the other counties in upper Georgia, contains, no donbt, untold wealth in gold, to say nothing of other precious metals which will certainly be developed at no distant day.

—Americus Recorder: Last Sunday morning, between one and two o'clock, the fire alarm was sounded. The fire was soon discovered to be in the grocery store of Mr. E. Brake, on the north side of the public streams playing. The fire in the old hotel was promptly suppressed and the building saved. The other two buildings were destroyed. They were owned by Glover & Perry and were not insured. The stock of E. Brake was not insured and was a total loss W. E. Brown, dealer in family groceries, had a $1,800 stock, was insured for $700, and saved a few goods in a damaged condition. There was a strong northwest wind blowing, and but for the prompt and effective work of the fire companies the fire could not have been confined to the two buildings burned. Had the old hotel rookery on the corner burned, the French house, Cain house and H. D. Watts's corner would have been in imminent danger, as the wind Cain house and H. D. Watts's corner would have been in imminent danger, as the wind set directly in that direction. We congratulate the fire department upon the successful issue of their efforts to save this valuable property, and the people generally upon having so efficient a volunteer organization in our city.

A "PATENT" WARRIOR

Who Turns From Pitls to Bullets. Sr. Louis, March 31 .- This city is about o enter the field with a rival to Edison though the St. Louis inventor makes claim of a character altogether different from of a character altogether different from 7:15 a m those of the Meulo park man. Dr. J. H. McLean, of this city, is the man, and what McLean, of this city, is the man, and what he proposes to do is practically to abolish war by supplying engines of destruction so deadly that war will be simply murder to deadly that war will be simply murder to all engaged on either side. The doctor is a all engaged on either side. The doctor is a patent medicine man, long known in the west, and, unlike most inventors, very wealthy, owning some of the finest business structures in St. Louis, and being in receipt of a heavy income. For the past two years his hobby has been the invention of improved artillery and fortifications, and, carrying on his work secretly, he has expended large sums, the total amounting to something near $100,000 in the manufacture of his guns, his workshops being at New Haven, Connecticut. Even his most intimate friends have been ignorant of his designs until within the past week, when, having his artillery about complete, he has seen fit to say something of his plans.

Some idea of the extent of the doctor's inventions and of the magnitude of his plans may be derived from the fact that in preparation for making them public he has had prepared a large volume, containing a hundred or so of elaborate engraving, illustrative of his new styles of arms and explanatory of his system of fighting. There are sketches of the armies of the present compared with what must be the armies of the future; illustrations of his guns in sections and in action, and cuts of turrets, forts, torpedoes and novel cartridges too numerous to mention. One gun is the 100 numerous to mention. One gun; another, the "Pulverizer," which rains grape-shot at a rate hereiofore nukrown; and there are also the "Lady McLean," the "General Grant" and others, the names being used to indicate guns adapted to different classes of service. These guns have been actually manufactured, and Dr. McLean expects to demonstrate to the government that the $400,000 recently appro-

A dispatch has been received in Atlanta ting the death of Dr. Wm. H. communicating the death of Dr. Wm. H. White at Iowa City, Iowa, who for the last twelve years has made his home in Atlanta, and who is so well and so favorably known to our citizens. Dr. White has been afflicted with disease of the liver for years, and it was this that caused his death. He left Atlanta late in the fall for a trip north and west to recuperate his failing health. Those who saw him when he left thought that the hand of death was upon him, and that he would never return, and their expectation was fulfilled.

He continued to get worse, growing weak-his last moments soothed with the cherish ed mini-trations of those he loved and who loved him.

Dr. White was born in Cherry Valley. New York, and when grown moved to Iowa, where he became an eminent and successful physician. He served through the war as a federal surgeon with skill and reputation. At the close of the war he removed to Momphis for his health, seeking a warm blacks and whites in the south, correcting the slanders and misstatements of the re-publican press about this matter. His lecture was copied widely over the entire north and west and did great good. The most con-spicuous achievement of his, however, in this line, was his celebrated north-western excursion to the south, which he got up, and which occasioned larger results of sec-tional fraternization than any event since ional fraternization than any event since the war. It was upon that occasion that at the great demonstration given by the people of Atlanta to the immense body of western excursionists, thus drawn by him through our section, that Senator Hill, in his memorable speech, gave public recognition of Dr. White's patriotic labors in this direction. And when the excursionists returned home they sent and presented to Dr. White, a costly and magnificent silver service in compliment to his noble work.

Dr. White proved a valuable citizen and left a memory among our people of which his family and relatives may be proud. he war. It was upon that occasion that at City. Yesterday in the superior court the case of Allen Brown vs. The City of Atlanta, was begun. It is a suit for damages to crops and farm of the plaintiff which he alleges were caused by an overflow which the water-works occasioned. The plaintiff was represented by T. P. Westmoreland and Judge Kirby while W. T. Newman, city attorney, and Colonel P. L. Mynatt appeared for the city. This sone of a lot of suits becaugh by the following parties genies the represented by T. P. Westmoreland and Judge Kirby while W. T. Newman, city attorney, and Colonel P. L. Mynatt appeared for the city. This is one of a lot of suits brought by the following parties against the city on similar complaints: M. Carroll, G. W. Morris, James Moore, Labon Stinges, Benjamin F. Thurman, F. N. Crawford, Lewis Harper, Ed Harper, Miles Taliaferro, Henry Wilson, John Harper and N. H. Mc-Millan. The total amount of damages claimed in these cases will not exceed $15,000 on the most liberal estimate, though n some of them there is a large sum claim-d as nominal damages. Nearly all of hem are for sums of from $300 to $500. They refer to overflows in the springs of '75, 76 and '77, which plaintiffs allege damaged heir crops and injured their farm property the defense of the city is that the water The defense of the city is that the water works were not the cause of these overflows and the consequent damages, but that they were the natural result of heavy rains. The trial of the present case of Allen Brown vs. the City will be watched with interest, as it is the first of the series.

There are four other cases for damages cending against the city which will involve much greater sum than all these smaller suits. They are brought by owners of mills below the water-works who claim that the construction of the city's reservoir di-verted the motive power of their mills and subjected them to great loss. Over these cases there is likely to be a sharp legal fight, as the liability and privileges of the city will be involved in a peculiar way. Some of these more important points may come up later during the present term of the superior court.

As the representative of the trustees, he effected a compromise of the litigation, by which the property was sold and the proceeds divided pro rata between the city, the trustees and those citizens of Atlanta who had made donations to the college. By this compromise there came into his hands as treasurer nearly $5,000, that was gathered from the wreck of the institution.
